60(b) AND REQUEST FOR INDICATIVE RULING,
PURSUANT TO FED. R. CIV. P.
62.1; EXHIBITS,

19 ORAL ARGUMENT REQUESTED

1 PLAINTIFF JEAN KASEM'S REPLY IN SUPPORT OF HER MOTION FOR 2 RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT AND REQUEST FOR INDICATIVE RULING

3 Plaintiff Jean Kasem (“Jean”)¹, a widow devastated by the unnecessary loss of 4 her husband of 34 years at St. Anthony Hospital (“Defendant’s Hospital”), wanted the 5 best legal representation possible in this wrongful-death suit and thought she had 6 found it in Wisconsin attorney Stanley Davis, whose resume and references appeared 7 stellar. She was disastrously mistaken. Unbeknownst to her, Davis had a history of 8 gross mishandling of his clients’ cases and did not even have an active law license –
9 in Wisconsin, Washington, or anywhere else – when she was at her most vulnerable 10 and most needed a zealous advocate. Although Davis’s high-school friend and local 11 counsel Michael Kelly valiantly attempted to salvage what he could of the case as it 12 deteriorated in the summer of 2018, his hands were tied by the lack of any co-counsel 13 agreement and Jean’s misplaced trust in Davis. Davis’s misconduct cost Jean dearly, 14 resulting not only in a premature adverse summary judgment, but leaving her pro se 15 for months as her case sat on appeal in the Ninth Circuit while she sought out new 16 counsel. For all of those reasons, Defendant’s opposition is without merit and Jean’s 17 motion should be granted.

18 I. Jean’s Motion Was Filed Within a Reasonable Time

19 A. Jean Did Not Have and Could Not Have Had Knowledge of All the 20 Facts in September 2018 Because of Davis’s Omissions and Affirmative Misrepresentations

21 Defendant contends, incorrectly, that Jean’s motion under Federal Rules of 22 Civil Procedure 60(b) and 62.1 is untimely because it was not brought within a

25 Because many of the individuals involved in the acts and omissions giving rise to this litigation 26 share the last name, Plaintiff refers to herself by her first name for consistency with previous filings.
27
28

1 “reasonable time.” (Opp’n at 6.) Rule 60(c) provides that a motion for relief from 2 judgment may be brought “within a reasonable time,” and, for relief under Rule
 3 60(b)(1)-(3), no more than a year after the entry of judgment. “What constitutes a 4 reasonable time depends on the facts of each case.” In re Pacific Far East Lines, Inc., 5 889 F.2d 242, 249 (9th Cir. 1989). Periods of 14 months or longer have been deemed 6 reasonable, particularly when the issue is attorney abandonment and 7 noncommunication. See Foley v. Biter, 793 F.3d 998, 1004 (9th Cir. 2015).

8 Jean brought her motion nine months after summary judgment was entered 9 against her, well within the one-year outer bound set forth in Rule 60(c). Contrary to 10 Defendant’s assertions in its opposition, neither Jean nor Kelly was “aware of all the 11 relevant facts supporting the motion” in September 2018. (Opp’n at 6.) Jean’s 12 declaration says the exact opposite: Davis did not tell her that his license to practice 13 law had been suspended (Decl. Jean Kasem ¶ 6) and actively misled her for months, 14 if not years (id. ¶¶ 11, 14). Indeed, Davis had been communicating with her about 15 possible experts until the very end, despite the futility of that endeavor in light of the 16 pending summary judgment motion. (Id. ¶ 14.) It takes a great leap of logic to 17 assume that Davis suddenly came clean about everything he had done – or failed to 18 do – in her case as soon as he received her email asking if it was really true that 19 summary judgment had been entered against her. Yet that is exactly what Defendant 20 has done in its opposition.

21 In September 2018, Jean was concerned with preserving her appeal rights and 22 seeking new counsel, not investigating Davis. (See id. ¶¶ 17-18.) Nothing in her 23 declaration says that she knew of any misconduct other than Davis’s failure to notify 24 her of the summary judgment motion subsequent adverse judgment – and even then 25 she was not even sure that had really happened and asked Davis to verify it. (Id. ¶ 26 17.) Nor could she have known the full extent of Davis’s misconduct, including his 27
 28

1 apparent pattern of similar gross negligence in other cases that has led to serious 2 disciplinary proceedings against him, because those proceedings were not filed until 3 December 2018. (Pl.’s Mot. Relief from Judgment, James Decl., Ex. A (Dkt. No. 57-4 1).)

5 Nor does anything in Kelly’s declaration establish that he knew of Davis’s
 6 malfeasance in September 2018, much less that he communicated it to Jean. Kelly 7 stated, under penalty of perjury, that “[u]nbeknownst” to him, Davis could not 8 immediately appear pro hac vice because his license was under suspension (Kelly 9 Decl. ¶ 9) and repeated multiple times that he did not know and could not ascertain 10 what Davis was doing or not doing behind the scenes, in part because of Davis’s 11 failure to communicate with him (id. ¶¶ 11-16, 19-22). Defendant’s contentions in 12 this regard are a combination of conjecture and wishful thinking.

13 B. Current Counsel Came Into This Case Late and Had to Perform Her 14 Own Investigation While Fulfilling Her Other Professional Duties

15 Current counsel appeared for Jean on appeal before the Ninth Circuit on 16 January 22, 2019. See James Notice of Appearance (Dkt. No. 11), Kasem v. Catholic 17 Health Initiatives, No. 18-35879 (9th Cir. filed Oct. 18, 2019). Davis and Kelly had 18 withdrawn at Jean’s request more than two months earlier, leaving her pro se and 19 compelling the Ninth Circuit to sua sponte grant her an extension of time to file her 20 opening brief. See Docket, Kasem, No. 18-35879, attached hereto as Exhibit 1.
 21 Counsel had to get up to speed on the appellate matter while also fulfilling numerous 22 other professional commitments, including a protracted and complex five-week jury
 23 trial in Los Angeles, and dealing with a death in the family and a major staffing change 24 at her office. (See Feb. 29, Apr. 18, and June 3, 2019 Decls. Becky S. James, attached 25 hereto as Exhibits 2-4.) Moreover, precisely because neither Jean nor Kelly had all 26 of the relevant facts beforehand, counsel had to perform her own investigation to 27
 28

1 determine if a motion for relief from judgment would be a viable course of action.
 2 Under those facts and circumstances, a span of five months between counsel's initial 3 appearance and a Rule 60(b) motion, with a total of nine months elapsing post-4 judgment, is eminently reasonable. In re Pacific Far East Lines, Inc., 889 F.2d at 5 249; see also Foley, 793 F.3d at 1004.

6 II. Jean's Motion Should Be Granted or Entertained on its Merits

7 A. The Weight of Authority Supports Jean's Position

8 As Jean argued in her Rule 60(b) motion, courts have agreed that "an 9 unknowing client should not be held liable" for an adverse judgment "resulting from 10 an attorney's grossly negligent conduct, and that in such cases sanctions should be 11 imposed on the lawyer, rather than on the faultless client." Community Dental 12 Services v. Tani, 282 F.3d 1164, 1169 (9th Cir. 2002). Further, in Spates-Moore v.
 13 Henderson, the Ninth Circuit addressed this same issue in the context of a Rule 14 60(b) motion seeking relief from summary judgment. See 305 F. App'x 449 (9th 15 Cir. 2008) (unpublished). In that case, an attorney failed to timely oppose several 16 motions to dismiss, failed to return phone calls or attend meetings, and failed to 17 adequately oppose a summary judgment motion, among other issues. Id. at 451.
 18 The Court held that these failures went "far beyond simple attorney error and 19 perhaps constituted gross negligence and extraordinary circumstances sufficient to 20 justify relief under 60(b)(6)." *Id.*²

21 Defendant cites to two unpublished district court cases, one from out of state, 22 and one unpublished Ninth Circuit decision, to support its argument that Jean has

25 ² Defendant argues that Spates-Moore does not support Jean's position because the Ninth Circuit 26 merely remanded the case to the trial court for further proceedings rather than pronouncing that 27 the attorney in question had been negligent. (Opp'n at 9 n.6.) This is disingenuous, as defense 28 counsel surely knows the difference between the roles of appellate and district courts and the appropriateness of resolving factual matters in the latter forum.

1 not shown attorney gross negligence beyond her control such that relief from 2 judgment is warranted. All three are distinguishable. In Anderson v. Jackson, 319
 3 F. App'x 451, 452 (9th Cir. 2008), the plaintiff did much more than “question [his 4 attorney’s] ability to represent him”; he actively sought to replace that attorney by 5 hiring new counsel, and his first attorney refused to withdraw. Ibid. The Ninth 6 Circuit thus found that the plaintiff had demonstrated that he had “more than an 7 ‘inkling’” of counsel’s failures by actively taking those affirmative steps. Ibid. By 8 contrast, as discussed above and in her Rule 60(b) motion, Jean did not know of 9 Davis’s failures because he lied to her over and over again about the status of her 10 case and the work he was performing. (See Decl. Jean Kasem ¶¶ 6, 11, 14-17.) In 11 Sylver v. Mathis, No. 2:09-cv-00855-RLH-LRL 2012 WL 1946966, at *2 (D. Nev.
 12 May 30, 2012), an unpublished lending-fraud case from Nevada, the plaintiff-client
 13 moved for relief under Rule 59(e) or 60(b) following an adverse grant of summary
 14 judgment because he disagreed with his attorney’s strategy and adduced spurious 15 evidence of his own that he contended created a genuine issue of material fact. The 16 court denied the motion because it concluded that the plaintiff’s additional evidence 17 would not have changed the outcome. Ibid. Here, Jean seeks the opportunity to 18 supply the expert testimony that Davis promised her and utterly failed to deliver on.
 19 (Decl. Jean Kasem ¶ 14.) Finally, in Brown v. Cowlitz County, No. C09-5090 RBL, 20 2010 WL 1608876, at *1-2 (W.D. Wash. Apr. 19, 2010), and unlike in this case, the 21 allegedly negligent attorney had attempted to rectify the situation by filing a motion 22 for reconsideration of the unfavorable summary judgment, supported by a 23 declaration from his client. Id. at *1. Davis did no such thing, and in fact never 24 even responded to Jean’s email asking if summary judgment had really been entered 25 against her. (Decl. Jean Kasem ¶ 17.) Thus, the nonbinding authorities cited by 26 Defendant are not on point.

27

B. Michael Kelly's and Jean's Sworn Declarations Show That Davis, Not Kelly, Was Lead Counsel

Nor, as Defendant contends (Opp’n at 10 n.7 & Decl. Thorsvig, Exs. A-J), do Kelly’s unsworn and informal emails change the analysis or the outcome. Kelly and Jean both submitted declarations under penalty of perjury stating that Kelly was not co-counsel, had no co-counsel agreement, and was only intended to serve as local counsel for Davis’s pro hac vice appearance. (See Decl. Jean Kasem ¶¶ 5, 7; Decl. Kelly ¶¶ 6-10, 18.) Of course Kelly signed all filings even after Davis had finally filled out the paperwork to be admitted pro hac vice – he had to as part of his duties as local counsel. That he made a last-ditch effort to propound discovery on Defendant in August 2018 (Thorsvig Decl, Ex. H) – to which Defendant responded on September 13, 2018, mere days before the summary judgment decision (Thorsvig Decl. Ex. I) does not change the local-counsel role that he and Jean agreed to and shows at most that he went above and beyond the call of duty to try and save the case when Davis had ceased communication without any explanation.³ (Kelly Decl. ¶¶ 15-16; see also id. ¶ 11 (Kelly performing similar clean-up work for Davis on first summary judgment motion without being asked to do so and without any agreement requiring him to do so).) But ultimately Jean and Kelly were both in the dark as to the full extent of Davis’s misconduct, which he actively concealed from Jean and at the very least concealed by omission from Kelly.

CONCLUSION

22 For the foregoing reasons, Plaintiff Jean Kasem respectfully requests that the 23 Court issue an order in accordance with Rule 62.1 indicating it would grant her 24 motion to vacate or that the motion raises a substantial issue and, upon remand from

²⁶ 3 Incidentally, this late-summer 2018 exchange of discovery information further supports Jean's 27 underlying position that summary judgment was prematurely granted.

1 the Ninth Circuit, enter an order granting this motion to vacate the judgment
2 pursuant to Rule 60(b).
